12th Annual Assembly of the Eastern Partnership Civil Society Forum

EaP beyond 2020: renewing commitments to rights, security, and the green agenda

7-10 December 2020<sup>1</sup>

Ahead of the Eastern Partnership Summit in early 2021, this flagship civil society event will bring together more than 180 CSOs and EaP and EU decision-makers to explore the contours of the EaP policy beyond 2020. Against the backdrop of the recently finished war in Nagorno-Karabakh, a severe political crisis in Belarus, and a number of important elections that have taken place in Georgia, Moldova and Ukraine, the event will focus on the new set of EaP deliverables for the period 2021-2025 and a true multi-stakeholder engagement in the frames of the EaP with the civil society at the core.

The European Green Deal is raising the bar for the EU and EaP countries alike for the new cycle, prompting us to discuss a number of issues: potential obstacles to better environmental protection and climate change mitigation in the EaP, effective participation of civil society in green reform processes and in addressing environmental challenges, and the support required to the region to implement the green agenda.

At the end of this year dominated by the COVID-19 pandemic - a crisis that will continue to affect the whole world for a substantial part of 2021 - we will look back at how the virus has affected CSOs' operations, what effects it will have on the implementation of the reform agenda in the key EaP policy areas, and how we can both prevent the slow-down in reform implementation, and ensure the reversal of the limitations to fundamental freedoms and rights imposed - often disproportionately - in response to the pandemic.

On top of COVID-19, the region's civil society has also responded to a number of other challenges in 2020. This event will touch on trends in citizens' self-organisation and mobilisation exploring how this newly-emerged enthusiasm can be supported to become a sustainable generator of societal changes in 2021 and beyond.

As in previous editions, the 2020 Annual Assembly will also celebrate the courage and inspiring achievements of civil society, presenting awards to activists who made an outstanding contribution to the political, economic and social development of their countries and to the defence of core democratic values, and to journalists having gone beyond the call of duty in the field of media freedom and freedom of expression.

Civil society has been advocating for greater empowerment of CSOs and other actors in the formulation and implementation of the new deliverables in order to turn the EaP policy into a truly multi stakeholder endeavour. Over the course of this panel discussion, the guest speakers will address a number of central questions. Where are we at, in the process of drafting the new EaP agenda? What are the upcoming milestones? How can we better enshrine the 'more for more' principle? What incentives for deepening cooperation and strengthening the regional approach will be there for the associated partners? ### Panel Debate: The European Green Deal and civil society's role in addressing environmental challenges

EaP roadmap obligations and EU assistance have provided solid support to the advancement of environmental protection and energy policy reform in the EaP countries. Looking ahead, the European Green Deal is now raising the bar for the EU and EaP countries alike for the new cycle - a very welcome and necessary development, but one which faces a number of obstacles. Indeed, the road to better environmental and climate change protection is paved with numerous potential roadblocks: delays in the adoption of primary or secondary legislation, faulty implementation, and weak institutions leading to weak enforcement, a lack of transparency, and insufficient consultation with civil society. What steps are necessary for the successful formulation and implementation of the European Green Deal in the EaP region? What obstacles remain to effective environmental and climate change protection and to the effective participation of civil society in the green transition, and how can they be removed? What support would be needed from the EU and the EaP governments?

2020 has been an eventful year for the EaP region, with civil society stepping up to the plate on many fronts: to mitigate the effects of COVID-19, to save lives, to monitor elections and bravely protest against stolen ones, to call out encroachments on fundamental freedoms and rights, and much more. What changes has the year brought to the civil society landscape, the way it mobilises, the level of trust it enjoys among the broader population and how it engages in the public sphere? What tendencies can we identify regarding citizens' self-organisation, and how can this mobilisation be effectively supported to lead to organisation and increased public participation? How can complementarities and synergies between old actors and new players be facilitated? And finally, what lessons from 2020 can we take into 2021 to be better equipped for upcoming challenges?

14.00 - 15.30

Panel Debate: *Security challenges in the EaP region in 2020 and Beyond

2020 has represented a watershed moment for security in the EaP region. The developments in Belarus after the presidential elections and Russia's overbearing involvement in the country's affairs have raised its vulnerability and had an impact on neighbouring Ukraine. In the coming months Belarus will face further deep political and economic crises, with the Kremlin likely to exploit the situation to pursue its strategic goals and strengthen its position. Similarly, the conflict between Armenia and Azerbaijan and the manner in which hostilities ceased redesigned the security map of the Caucasus, with Russian military presence growing. What are the consequences of these developments? What are the major security challenges for the region in the upcoming year? What other external factors have to be considered in situational analyses? How will the new EaP roadmap respond to some of these challenges? How can the EU play a bigger role as the security provider in the region?
